

Teach About Women

Changing the stories we tell about women, gender, and power in classrooms and beyond

Make a difference!

Your contribution supports:

1 New York State Campaign

We are building a coalition of NYS schools to petition to re-write the NYS Standards for Social Studies in High School to include rich and intersectional material on women and gender.

7 National Outreach Initiatives

We are targeting schools around the country and sending them state-specific how-to guides to help them start their own campaigns.

4 Classroom Programs

We are working with schools and partners to hone and disseminate effective programs for bringing women-centric, feminist, and social justice education to more students:

Social Media For Change-Makers (middle school)

Excavating Lost Experiences: A Return to the Historical Record (high school)

Intersectional Feminist Courses (adaptable, grades 6-12)

Collaborative Rubrics: A Gender-Inclusive Method for Teaching Writing (adaptable, grades 4-12)

1 Day of Workshops for Teachers

We are running a day of workshops for educators to learn tried-and-true methods for teaching about women, gender, and social justice and using gender-inclusive practices.

1 Interactive Blog

We are bringing students, educators and supporters together in an online community to address the question: How does the personal activate the political?

4 Supporter Events

We are gathering supporters and educators to take the lessons of social justice and feminism beyond the classroom.
